

Please do not make the mistake with television ownership that was made with radio. Keep current regulations in place. Media consolidation has already lead to a congressional inquiry into ClearChannels anti-competitive processes. The FCC board is currently considering the insane idea to make television ownership ripe for the same abuses allegedly being made as a result of the deregulation of radio. Do not alter ownership caps for television stations. The ownership of the airwaves belongs to the public, not to five commissioners of the FCC.
